He hacked them to death with a chopper, and was shortly afterwards apprehended: "In conformity with the law in such cases made and provided." save the memorialist, " be has been sentenced to suffer death by the lingering (ling-ch's) process, and this sentence has been carried into execution." With this severe and painful soutence, any one would imagine, the demands of the law would have been fully satisfied ; but far from this being the case, his relatives are pursued with its vergence. "In conformity with the provisions of the same statute," proceeds the Viceroy, "the offender's son is sentenced, in consequence of his parent's holmous crime, to be transported to one of the farthest frontiers of the Empire, at a distance of not less than 4,000 li from the scene ation: whilst the murderer's wife is likewise transported into a nearer place of banishment." ROMAN CATHOLIC STATISTICS. From the new issue of the "Ontholic Directory" for 1877, published by Mesers. Burns and Oates, of Portman-street and Paternoster-row, we learn some interesting statistics concerning the Roman Catholic Church in England. The olorgy under Cardinal Manning's Archiepiscopul control are now 1,828, serving 1,076 different public churches, chapels, and missionary stations, showing an increase during the past ten years (since 1867) of 413 under the former head and 62 under the latter. There are now 18 Archbithons and Bishops in England and Wales, against 16 at the former data -namely, a Cardinal Archbishop and 12 Soffragan Bishops, two auxiliary or coadintor Bishops, . and one Archbishop, and two Bishops who are retired. In Scotland, during the same period of ten years the churches and chapels. have increased from 239, and the priests from 193 to 260. In the Archdiocese of Westminster the religious communities of men are 17 just the same as they were in 1867; but during the same period the convents of women have increased from 27 to 40, almost all of whom are engaged either in teaching the poor schools, or in norsing the sick, or in reformatory work. The Roman Catholic peers, including Irish poors and peerseses in their own right, are 36, and in two cases the heirs to their tilles. are in holy orders. The Roman Catholic baronets are 48, and there are seven Ostholio members of Her Mojesty's Privy Conneil. The Roman Catholic members of the House of Commone number 50, all of whom sit for Irish constituencies. Passing to the general summary, which gives a brief account of the Roman Catholic Church in foreign countries, we find that the Sacred College of Cardinale consists at present of 57 members, its full complement being 70-namely, 6 Cardinal Bishops, 44 Cardinal Pricats, and 7 Cardinal Deacons. At the head of the Cardinal Bishop stands the name of Constantine Patrizzi (who has died, however, Episcopate, the "Directory" states that there Messoles-are rife now in the city.
